COMBS ACTING DIRECTOR

GIVEN ASSOCIATE PROFESSORSHIP

Interim Staff Is Dissolved

Mr. Richard Combs has been appointed acting director of Purdue Calumet Center, it was announced Monday, January 26, by Dean C. H. Lawshe, head of the University Extension Administration. At the same time, Mr. Combs has been given the rank of associate professor.

Mr. Paul Meier and Mr. William Jones, it was also announced, have been designated administrative assistants and have been promoted to the rank of assistant professor. Mr. W. Marshall Tackett has been given the title of admissions and registration officer, along with a promotion to an assistant professorship.

These announcements came at a special faculty meeting at 1:00 p.m. Monday, at which a telegram from Dean Lawshe was read. In part, the telegram read: "I have every reason to believe that you will support Professor Combs without reservation and that you will join me in congratulating him."

On August 1, 1958, shortly after the death of Millard Gyte, Dean Lawshe appointed an interim committee to govern the Center. This committee was made up of four assistant directors: Mr. Combs, Mr. Tackett, Mr. Jones, and Mr. Meier, of which group Mr. Combs acted as chairman.

Mr. Combs came to Purdue Center in 1955. He taught mathematics and physical science before assuming the duties of assistant director to Mr. Gyte in February of 1957.

He received an A.B. in mathematics from the University of South Dakota in 1951, and in the same year took an M. A., with a minor in educational administration, from South Dakota. Before coming to the Center, Mr. Combs worked on the staff of the Winner, South Dakota, public schools. In 1952-54 he was principal of three junior high school and elementary school in Winner.

Mr. Combs is a member of Phi Delta Kappa, the American Society of Engineering Education, the American Technical Education Association, and the Central Association of Science and Mathematics Teachers.

Welcome To P. U. C. C.

Hello, hello, hello . . . hello! The Student Council, the BOILERMAKER, the faculty—in fact, just everyone—bids you, the new students, welcome. May you find your stay at P.U.C.C. a happy, swingin' ball.

You will find that life at P.U.C.C. will be different from any other that you might have known. College may change you, for better or for worse. Let's hope that it is for the former.

There are many activities facing you. For instance, there is the Student Council. Elections have already taken place, but you may still offer your services to this worthy organization. The Student Council especially needs help in its social program.

The BOILERMAKER also announces its bid for help. It desperately needs reporters, proofreaders, typists, layout help, and help in selling advertisements. If you do not believe me, ask Mr. Tinkham, a very amiable fellow.

Now, for you boys—uh, I mean men—there is a fraternal organization, the Circle K, to which you may belong. For those males who despise girls—of which there must be few—this offers a wonderful opportunity to exchange views on these curvaceous mysteries.

You girls musn't feel left out, for there is also a girls' club, The Pi Sigma Kappa. This is the first year that the girls have counterattacked the boys with a legal female organization. You new girls will undoubtedly become familiar with the Casino, another not so secret weapon aimed at the males.

One of the newest and most wonderful organizations that has come to P.U.C.C. is PMO, the Purdue Musical Organization. It offers a wonderful opportunity for both men and women who enjoy singing.

You can see that Purdue offers much to its new students in the way of activities.

P.S. P.U.C.C. also holds many dances, both informal and semi-formal.

Everyone's Having A Ball

PROOF OF THE CAPTION is seen in the smiles of (l. to r.) Roberta Meyers and Brandt Loickingen, Janet Gaylen and John Mihalec, Faye Karras and Ron Nudo.

JUKE BOX A HIT WITH STUDENTS

The Juke Box Dance on Saturday, January 17, had a very good turnout. The dance began at 8:00 p.m. and the last person left about 11:45 p.m. 9t the dance one of our better known instructors was clapping his hands in order to keep time with the music. Also, the students seemed to be enjoying themselves when a Conga line was started to the music of "Rocka Conga." The line motivated throughout the entire lounge. Also, there was a tour of the famous Casino.

The juke box was set up in a manner that enabled the students to play their selections without using money.

Refreshments of orange punch with orange sherbert were served, The refreshments were donated by Mr. and Mrs. Louis Karras.

Th students that remained till the end of the dance helped clean up the lounge and get the tables back in their original order.

The next dance will be February 7, a Valentine's Day affair. It is a bit early. See you all there.

SEMI-FORMAL DECORATIONS OUTSTANDING

December 20, 1958, was a big night for the student body of P.U.C.C. The occasion — the winter formal. This is one of the traditions of our campus and this last dance left nothing to be desired. In past years the formals have always been successful, and this year's was no exception. The lounge was decorated in a splendor that mere words cannot describe. Most prominent in the decorating scheme was the archway of evergreen boughs over the staircase. The cafeteria filled the need for a place to sit and have something to drink. One of the nicest decorating schemes was the liberal sprinkling of mistletoe—all the comforts of home. Mickey Isley's band moved from mood music to rock and roll, to the cha cha, to give everyone a chance at sore feet and tired legs. The evening ended, or rather one part of it ended, at 12:00 midnight. At this time most of the kids scattered to various night clubs and continued their festivities. When school resumed after the holidays, there was a lot of talk about the Christmas dance and a good deal of speculation about the upcoming Spring formal. With the help of the student body this dance can be a great success also. However, it takes more than the usual few to make these dances a success and maintain the traditions behind them. So with fond memories of that certain night in December start to look ahead a little to the Spring formal and we'll see you there.

V.P. Nixon Calls Tucker

On Tuesday, January 20th, Vice President Richard Nixon telephoned Dr. Raymond K. Tucker at his office at the Purdue Calumet Center.

This call was in answer to a request for a personal interview, to obtain from Nixon firsthand information on his speechmaking practices—that is, how he prepares his speeches, specific delivery techniques, etc.

Mr. Nixon's appointment secretary, Mr. Hughes, with whom Dr. Tucker carried on the bulk of the conversation, informed him that the Vice President would be happy to grant him a personal interview in the near future but the exact date would be specified by Nixon for Tucker's Washington trip.

The Nixon interview will constitute one-fourth of a research project which Dr. Tucker is conducting. His aim is to determine the facts from high public officials concerning their speech-making activities and practices while they are still alive rather than waiting for history to make guesses about them after they are dead. The educational value of such information to students studying public speaking in American universities is obvious. Harry Truman was the first to grant such an interview. His comments were published in the Speech Assn's. scholarly Quarterly Journal of Speech. It was, and continues to be required reading for thousands of students of speech across the nation.

A similar request was made of President Eisenhower, Secretary of State Dulles, and Sir Winston Churchill. Their replies are quoted below, in part:

Eisenhower: "While the President would like to help in all worthwhile educational efforts, in this particular case he would prefer to defer consideration until nearer the end of his tenure of office. May we suggest, therefore, that you communicate with the President again the later part of 1960 . . . "

Dr. Tucker's fear is that the President might not live out his full tenure of office and that the firsthand information will never be obtained.

Secretary of State Dulles: " . . . I regret that the Secretary's extremely heavy schedule during the coming months will not permit him to take advantage of your invitation at this time."

Sir Winston Churchill, former Prime Minister of England: 'From the Private Secretary to The Rt. Hon. Sir Winston Churchill, K.G., O.M., M.P.—House of Commons: 'Sir Winston Churchill thanks you for your letter but regrets he cannot do as you ask.!' "

The above quotation from Churchill appeared on a printed card and constituted the entire communication received.

The project is one of several research investigations which Dr. Tucker is conducting. His other current research projects are concerned with the effects of the way we use the English language on racial prejudice, and a study of anti-democratic traits in foremen in the steel industry.

The current investigation will provide the basis of a paper which Dr. Tucker hopes to present to the convention of the Speech Association of Amercia which will convene in New York City next December.

Dr. Tucker is Assistant Professor of Speech at PUCC and is former assistant director of training, Gary Steel Works, Gary, Indiana.

Dr. Tucker says:

"I have not given up on getting this information from Ike, Dulles and Churchill. It may take a little creative thinking, but we'll get it in 1959."

The March of Peanuts

The 1959 March of Dimes is underway, and the Purdue Boilermaker staff will sell peanuts in the student lounge during the lunch hours.

BICENTENIAL ANNIVERSARY

Several of our more misguided male students at P.U.C.C. are celebrating the 200th wedding anniversary of George Washington. They are commemorating this great occasion by growing beards, goatees, and mustaches. The reason these poor fellows are doing this is because they feel that someone who has been married 200 year deserves to have something dor for him.

The granddaddy beard of them belongs to one Rod Jackson, has been nurturing his master since Thanksgiving. Other growers include Ray Nilles Pannasow, Earl Willette, Dic kody, Tom Blastick, Ron Jim Kokenis, Tom Liech Kilkeary.

ARDELEANU SCHNEIDER

Today, Constantin Ardeleanu, professor of German at P.U.C.C., is a resident of Gary, Indiana, but he was born in Transylvania, a province of Rumania, educated in Arad and Bucharest, and held as a prisoner of war in Germany during the Second World War.

Mr. Ardeleanu received what we could call our secondary education in Arad. Then he was accepted into the university at Bucharest, where he earned a Bachelor of Science degree in Business Administration. He also studied modern languages, and following his liberation from POW camp by the American Army, he taught the younger children languages while living in the camps for displaced persons.

In 1951 on June 2nd, he entered the United States. Four days later he was employed at Inland Steel. From 1952 to 1954, he participated in the Inland-Purdue Training Program, and in 1956 he began to teach German at the Calumet Center.

Mr. Ardeleneau met and married his wife in Germany in 1948. They have two young children: a girl, Cornelia, who is five years old, and a boy, Constantin, who is one.

Besides teaching at Purdue and working at Inland Steel, Mr. Ardeleanu is active in the social activities of the Rumanian groups in the area. He is the secretary of a Rumanian Fraternal Organization and a speaker for the Rumania Radio Hour. He has also appeared on three television programs: International Cafe, Polka Time, and Polka-Go-Round.

His future plans? Well, he enjoys working at Inland and teaching at Purdue. He wants to do more teaching, and judging from the kind words said of him by his present students, "Connie's" classes will always be full.

MISS NATALIE SCHNEIDER

Miss Natalie Schneider, instructor in mathematics in the College and Technical Institute, says she was born in Indianapolis "a long time ago." The first words she spoke as a child, she claims, came immediately after her first roller coaster ride, when she said, "I want to go again." This is apparrently the only recorded case of a child's using an entire sentence for its first spoken words. Miss Schneider attributes the phenomenon to her father, a very exacting newspaper man who worked for such papers as the Indianapolis Star and the Chicago Tribune.

Having lived in such cities as Richmond, Evansville, Chicago, Cincinatti and Detroit, Miss Schneider's family eventually returned to Indianapolis, where she attended Shortridge High School. After her graduation from Shortridge, she attended night school at Purdue Center in Indianapolis, went from there to the campus at Lafayette. She was graduated from Purdue in 1956, taking a Bachelor of Science in Mathematics. At present she is completing work for an M.S. in Statistics at Purdue.

Miss Schneider came to Purdue Center in September of 1957. She has also taught, during the summer, at the Lafayette campus.

Her office here is Room 101, which she shares with English and History faculty. Far from feeling out of place, she has undertaken to teach her colleagues some of the methods and theory of statistics. In her turn, she is learning all about King Tut, dangling modifiers, and Mark Twain.

"I don't have any hobbies. I don't belong to any clubs or organizations," Miss Schneider says. But she is a devotee of FM, "like everybody else lately." She likes semiclassical music best of all; she doesn't mind a classical item now and then; but "I violently dislike rock and roll." She says she has a "kind of ear" for modern jazz.

She likes baseball, but "not hot dogs or screaming spectators." Baseball, she believes, is essentially a game of strategy.

LOCKER ROOM

After seeing two years of frustrating basketball here at the Calumet Center, I was just about ready to give up any hope for a winning season. I also believe this has been the general feeling among the students. Well, after seeing several games this season, I have found new hope again. Those guys are good!

After losing Lou Day, Coach Hayes swamped his line up. Replacing Day is Jerry Francour, who up to the first Roosevelt game, hadn't shown much in scoring. Since he has started, however, he has averaged better than 10 points a game and has been outstanding on defense.

Larry Onitis replaced injured John Rimkunas at center and seems to have come back to his last year's form.

John will really have to hustle to get the starting job back. Larry has scored exceptionally well and has been a steady rebounder.

The remainder of the lineup is still the same with Chuck Rayson and Bill Smith at forwards, and Bob Wakefield at the other guard. Rayson has been the team's leading scorer and rebounder.

Bench strength includes hustling Jimmy Dedelow and John Rimkunas. Both are good scorers and dependable.

As of this writing, the P.U.C.C. boys have won four of their last five and are still going strong. I have great faith in these boys, and what they lack in height is made up amply by spirit.

Let's all support them more to let them know we're interested in them and that we haven't lost that college spirit.

PUCC Rides Victory Trail

Riding the crest of smart basketball, the PUCC Boilermakers took three of four basketball games in what should indicate a general upturn of a very successful season.

After losing to a strong Thornton J. C. ball club 88-68, Coach Hayes' monsters of the basketball court defeated Roosevelt College twice, 80-64 and 74-70, and bested the University of Chicago "B" 67-30.

Coach Hayes' boys might have pulled one out of the fire, if Thorntons' Jimmy Ring had forgotten to suit up. This small but mighty forward connected for 41 points while his teamate Rich Brown totaled 25, a combined total of 66 points as compared to the entire offensive total of 68 points by PUCC.

PUCC came back, however, and upended a strong Roosevelt College quintent 80-64 at the armory. Balance scoring by Purdue was the key factor for the victory as nine of the ten PUCC squadmen broke into the scoring column.

Bill Smith was high man for the Boilermakers with 14 counters, with Larry Drutis, Jerry Francoeur and Chuck Rayson hitting 13, 11 and 10 points repsectively.

The rubber game played on Roosevelt's home court saw PUCC accumulate 21 fouls among the first five and a total of 28 for the entire team. Jerry Francoeur led the Boilermaker attack with 17 points, with Chuck Rayson, Bob Wakefield, and Larry Drutis scoring 14, 12 and 11 counters respectively.

The victory over the University of Chicago "B" was probably the easiest and sloppiest game of the season. Chuck Rayson was high man with 18 counters with Bob Wakefield and Bill Smith hitting 16 and 13 points apiece.
